Special Issue
«Varieties of Contemporary Second-Order Cybernetics»
edited by Alexander Riegler and Karl H. Müller

Dedicated to Ranulph Glanville (1946–2014)
for his enormous efforts in promoting second-order cybernetics

443 Karl H. Müller & Alexander Riegler
Mapping the Varieties of Second-Order Cybernetics

520 Marcelo Arnold-Cathalifa & Daniela Thumala-Dockendorff
To What Extent Can Second-Order Cybernetics Be a Foundation for Psychology?

521 Robert J. Martin
The Importance — and the Difficulty — of Moving Beyond Linear Causality

524 Philip Baron
Obstacles to Cybernetics becoming a Conceptual Framework and Metanarrative in the Psychologies

527 Eva Buchinger
The Social and the Psychological: Conceptual Cybernetic Unification vs Disciplinary Analysis?

528 Tilia Stiingl de Vasconcelos Guedes
Second Thoughts on Cybernetic Unifications

530 Lea Šugman Bohinc
Cybernetics and Synergetics as Foundations for Complex Approach Towards Complexities of Life

532 Bernard Scott
Author's Response: On Becoming and Being a Cybernetician

539 Diana Gaspayan
Consciousness as Self-Description in Differences

550 Yoehai Atarja
On the Too Often Overlooked Complexity of the Tension between Subject and Object

552 Urban Kordėš
Where Is Consciousness?

554 Konstantin Pavlov-Pinus
Theorizing Agents: Their Games, Hermeneutical Tools and Epistemic Resources

557 Bryony Pierce
How Can Meaning be Grounded within a Closed Self-Referential System?

559 John Pickering
Self-Description Alone Will not Account for Qualia

561 Sergei Levin
Consciousness as Self-Description and the Inescapability of Reduction

562 Adriana Schetz
The Non-Relationality of Consciousness

564 Diana Gaspayan
Author’s Response: Phenomenology of the System: Intentionality, Differences, Understanding, and the Unity of Consciousness

572 Ben Sweeting
Design Research as a Variety of Second-Order Cybernetic Practice

581 David Griffiths
Understanding Design from a Second-Order Cybernetics Perspective: Is There a Place for Material Agency?

583 Christiane M. Herr
What Can Cybernetics Learn from Design?

585 Michael Hohl
Rigor in Research, Honesty and Values

586 Mateus de Sousa van Stralen
Digital Design Research and Second-Order Cybernetics

587 Jose dos Santos Cabral Filho
Cybernetics Is the Answer, but What Was the Conversation About?

589 Andrea Jelić
(ARCHITECTURAL) Design Research in the Age of Neuroscience: The Value of the Second-Order Cybernetic Practice Perspective

591 Ben Sweeting
Author’s Response: Beyond Application

598 Tom Scholte
“Black Box” Theatre: Second-Order Cybernetics and Naturalism in Rehearsal and Performance

610 Bruce Clarke & Dorothy Chansky
Audience and Autopoiesis

612 Bernd Porr
“Truthful” Acting Emerges Through Forward Model Development

613 Edgar Landgraf
Naturalism in Improvisation and Embodiment

616 Lowell F. Christy Jr.
Opening the Black Box of Minds: Theatre as a Laboratory of System Unknowns

618 Albert Müller
Does Second-Order Cybernetics Provide a Framework for Theatre Studies?

619 Ben Sweeting
A Theatre for Exploring the Cybernetic Cybernetics Perspective: Is There a Place for Material Agency?

621 Laurence D. Richards

623 Tom Scholte
Author’s Response: “Playing With Dynamics”: Procedures and Possibilities for a Theatre of Cybernetics

630 Acknowledgment to Reviewers of Volume 11